Charles Dougherty, member of Congress from Florida; B. B. Minor, formerly the editor of the Southern Literary Messenger and former president of the University of Missouri; Major Horace Jones, Professor Henry Farris, Major Smith, W. R. Abbott, Esq., Professor C. L. C. Minor, Professor Alonzo Hill, of Alabama, and Professor Richard M. The alumni orator, the Hon. C. E. Stuart, of Alexandria, made an address upon the subject, "Federal Aid to the Free-School System of the State," He said that it was not true, as some would argue, that the right of the Central Government to aid the State governments in this matter "would imply a power in the Federal Government to absorb one of the inherent rights and duties of the States, to interfere with a sphere in which the States are sovereign and in the end enable it to become the dispenser of all education, thus virtually centralizing the present confederation. Certainly such is not the purpose of this address, mor is such a conclusion warranted by the subject as stated—that subject as analyzed by those who believe that within their respective spheres each government is sovereign, and its scope nd power are limited. The assistance is to come from the Federal Government because the need is general, and the taxes from which the fund is to be derived is as foundless as the General Government. It must be aid, not maintenance or interference with rights and duties of the States-and aid only, because the word implies veluntary assistance upon the one part, but a right to reject that aid if hampered with improper conditions, upon the other part. "It is to be extended to the free-school systems because the educational systems of the States to be valuable must be open to all, without money and without price. But it is to be extended to the free-school systems of the States, not to a general system, not to one controlled by the Federal Government, but one in accordance with the policy of each State, directed by its agents under laws formed by its own Legislature, subject to but one condition-free education to all men without regard to race. The gift is voluntary, and may year by year be repudiated if encumbered by conditions infringing upon the rights of the States. The vaults of the Federal Treasury groan with their burden of wealth, levied upon and collected from all the people of all the States by virtue of the Constitution. Shall it be retained in idleness or expended for the benefit of the public, the perpetuation of republican institutions, the educathe masses? For such a measure the times are ripe and the country prepared. Said a great orator, stand-ing here thirty-odd years ago: Opportunity. like another winged steed, Perseus, comes bounding by; miss it, and you may long sit helpless by the wayside, but seize, mount, and ride victoriously, and the corridors of time shall long reecho to the clang of your trampling hoofs, and the pages of history gleam and glow with the pomp of your predestined march.' Shall we sit helpless by the wayside? Duty to our-selves, the debt we owe to posterity.

The alumni banquet followed, but owing to Dr. Davis's severe illness there QUIP. were no toasts.

JULY 1, 1885. Great indignation prevails here among the Democrats over the reinstating of Colonel H. deB. Clay as collector of customs for the Yorktown district, after removing him and appointing Major Baker P. Lee in his place. There is much feeling on the subject, as Colonel Clay is known here as a most active partisan. He was chairman of the Republican District Committee in the last election and worked most energetically for the ticket, and he is reported as having said "he visited every house in Warwick county where there was a Republican voter." Democrats at New-port's News state that he was at the polls on election-day in November all the time; consequently the Demo-grats are outspoken in their indignation. A mass-meeting to protest against his retention is probable. HAMPTON.

[By telegraph to the Dispatch.] WASHINGTON, July 1.—Complaint has been lodged with the Civil-Service Commission by Owen Kellar, of Caldwell, Ohio, to the effect that having been certified by the commission for appointment to a twelve-hundred-dollar sition in the Treasury Department, and having been notified by mail that the position awaited his arrival, he came to Washington, and upon reporting in person the appointment was re-fused him. Kellar says the reason of the refusal was none other than that he is a Republican. Judge Thoman (Democrat), member of the Commission, is absent, but the remaining members have taken the complaint under consideration, and it is probable that a letter will be addressed to the Secretary of the Treasury asking for his statement of the facts in the case. This is the usual course in such cases. General Schenowith, First Auditor of the Treasury, to whom Kellar was assigned to duty, said to-day that he had refused to accept Kellar on the ground that he was personally offensive to the Democrats in the district where he lived. In fact, he had received a letter from Representative Warner protesting against Kellar's appoint-ment. He (Warner) described Kelier as a man who had been active in the support of Taylor, who ran against Warner for Congress. He also said that Kellar had taken every opportunity to insult the Democrats of the district. Schenowith said he did not want such a man in his office, and told him so. He also informed Kellar that if he had to appoint him on the certificate of the Civil-Service Commission he would discharge him the next day, but that if Kellar preferred it he would return his papers to the Com-mission and let them take up the usual course. Kellar agreed to the latter alternative, and the papers were re-

The vacancies in fourth-class post-offices number not less than 2,500, and some estimates nake the number much greater. Nearly all the vacancies have been caused by resignations, or removals because of misconduct on the part of postmasters. In many cases postmasters have written to the Department asking why no attention had been paid to their requests to be relieved from the duties of office made in March last. The explanation is to be found in a great number of cases, that are constantly pressed upon the attention of the First Assistant Postmaster-General where an immediate change is desirable in order to se-

Found Dying in an Optum-Joint. [By telegraph to the Dispatch.]
NEW YORK, July 1.—An unknown nan was found unconscious this morning in a house on Crosby street. He was removed to a hospital, where it was found that he was suffering from opium-poisoning. He died about an hour after his admission without regaining consciousness. In his clothes were found letters signed "Sam. Davenport." The room where the man was found bore evidences that it had been run as an opium-joint. He was partially undressed, and lay on a bench. Some cards and letters, the latter signed "Sam. Davenport," were found on him, but nothing by which he could be identified. The room had been occupied by three Chinamen and was full of people last night, and opium-smoking was said by the tenants of the house to be in full blast. This morning the people went away and the Chinese proprietors fled when they found the stranger was dying. It is supposed they robbed him before they left. The police are endeavoring to unravel the mystery, but the only clue they have to the dead man is a handkerchief found on him marked "A. B."

The jury was unanimous from the start as to Mackin's guilt, and there was very little discussion over the term of imprisonment.

Several arrests were made, but the police were almost pow-erless to handle the mob. At Union street all sorts of obstructions were thrown on the track, and several ringleaders were arrested, and a shot was fired at one of the supposed leaders. Missiles were even thrown from build ings on the street at the cars. The cars moved along slowly with a great crowd following and uttering threats. Proceeding further west an enormous crowd of threatening men had assembled near Ann street, and the air was filled with stones as the cars tried to make their way through. REVIEW OF THE CHICAGO MARKET.

CHICAGO, July 1.—Trading in wheat was active at the opening to-day and the term per was very strong, but the market lapsed into dulness, followed by spasms of activity. Foreign advices were quoted dul, and inactive markets were probably due to the reported increase of stocks abroad, which were reported to be 2 300,000 bushels larger at Liverpool than on April 1st. The weather in the West was reported fine for crops, but as the deliveries fc. July appeared to be well carred for the "shorts" appeared to be anxious to cover and the market opened \( \frac{1}{2} \) higher, advancing \( \frac{1}{2} \) and it has point considerable "long" wheat came on the market, which caused a break of \( \frac{1}{2} \), but under a fair demand prices railled \( \frac{1}{2} \), speculative demand for corn was light, but the market was firm and closed \( \frac{1}{2} \), higher than yesterday. The receipts were smaller and the estimated receipts were less than the arrivals to-day. There was fair trading in oats, with stoady feeling and no appreciable change in prices. Provisions ruled steady and prices exhibited little change.
